* indicates a required field

Premise

A Premise refers to an individual apartment complex style dwelling that is part of the Unit Plan mentioned in this application form. If eligible, each individual Premise maybe able to take part in the Program as a distinct Premise. If there are multiple distinct Premises within the same Unit Plan, an individual application will need to be completed for each distinct Premise. For more information please refer to Section 1.6 of the Solar for Apartments Terms and Conditions.

Class A units are limited in height, with boundaries defined by reference to floors, walls, and ceilings. Class B units on the other hand are unlimited in height (apart from any encroachments by another part of the parcel). Class A units are generally flats or apartments in multi-storey developments, whereas class B units are generally townhouses or stand-alone dwellings in a unit complex. However, this may not necessarily be the case; class A and B units can take other configurations. This information aims to assist in determining whether a unit is class A or B. If you are unsure if you own a class A or class B unit you can find out by checking the certificate of title of your unit which should be included with the documents attached to your sale contract. You can also obtain a title search from the Land Titles Office for a small fee.
